At the bottom of the hill, close to the railway station, stands the old building in which Lincoln used to be a clerk. At Stat board walk leads to the summit time, however, the store was on the hill. When the railroad came the building was moved down the hill, and the park where it stood is now a tobacco patch STORE WHERE LINCOLN WORKED.
This store was kept by William Jones, who was afterward killed at the battle of who was afterward killed at the battle of Atlanta, while serving as lieutenant-colonel of the Fifty-third Indiana. Lincoln used to drive around the country for Jones, and of evenings would act as clerk in the store. He was a great favorite with the people around there, and they used to go up to Jones' store to hear Lincoln "speak pieces" and argue politics. anxious that the dectors take into their hands in a measure the selection of a superintendent, but in this the dectors do not agree and are not anxious to have the responsibility.

The annual report of the hospital's work, which was to have been given out. frequently that he wanted to live long enough to vote for him for President.

In those days there were no other towns close by and Lincoln used to come here frequently. It is said of him that he was a long, awkward boy, full of fun and mischief, who could hit harder, jump further, run faster and ride better than any other boy of his crowd. He was considerable of a fighter too, and had a number of "scraps," but is is declared that in every instance he got into the fights to protect some one else. While he had friends he also had enemies, but after he got into Jones' store he settled down, and when not attending to business or debating he was reading any book he could get hold of or writing poetry. Until a few years ago there was in Gentryville an old wooden fire shovel on which Lincoln had traced these lines:

SAVED A TOPER FROM FREEZING. There used to be a character around Gentryville in its early days known as "Old Holmes," who was a chronic drunkard. One winter night "Old Holmes" would have frozen but for Lincoln, who found him and carried him home, sitting we all wight to with the life back. This inound him and carried this lone, stored up all night to rub the life back. This incident started a temperance wave over Spencer county and the debates were startling and interesting.

startling and interesting.

Half way up the long wandering street for many years stood an old blacksmith shop. In front of it was a wide-streading tree that still waves its boug's but every sign of the old slop is gone. The ground on which stood the smithy for ye ra was owned by Rev. F. A. Heuring, past commander of the Indiana G. A. R., but is now the neperty of Jacob Dendinger, the now the poperty of Jacob Dendinger, the town marshal. This old blacksmith shop was a famous place in the lfc of Gentry-ville, and was a favorite re-ort fo the peccele of Spencer county. The o'd black-smith (whose name every one seems to have forgotten) was a natural story teller, and he had around him a crowd of as good story tellers as himself.

Abraham Lincoln was at this shop Abraham Lincoln was at this shop a great deal and it was a common resort for his father, Thomas Lincoln, and Abraham's uncles, John and Dennis Hanks. The shop was the county newsstand, the lecture platform and it was here that Abraham Lincoln learned many of the stories that he told in after life. It was here that Dennis Hanks told the story of Sykes' dog, a story that Lincoln told to General Grant after the fall of Vicksburg, and which was one of the most famous of the Lincoln stories.

Sykes had a dog that was a nuisance and which was one of the most famous of the Lincoln stories.

Sykes had a dog that was a nuisance and some one fed him a large cartridge that those who were complaining of Grant amounted to much after that as a dog. Lincoln's application of the story was that those ho were complaining of Grant for paroling so many of Pemberton's army did not real'ze that after the fall of Vicksburg it did not amount to much as an army.

(By Associated Press.) BOSTON, MASS., November 4.-In connection with the lifteen murderous assault cases which have occurred in Campitage. Brooking and Somerville within the last few months, two of which resumed fatally, the police today arrested Alan G. Mason, of Boston, a well known and wealthy business man, a member of the Planc manufacturing firm of Mason and Hamun, a prominent club memoer, and marvara graduate. The ponce suspects mason has been involved in nearly an cumstances of each have been very simaar. Mr. Mason is a middle-aged man, but he has been a victim of menta trouble for which he was treated at the McLean Asylum at Waverly. About a year ago he was permitted to leave the institution. Since that time, it is said, he has been permitted to go and ocme at will, and the fact that he had been frequently seen about the localities in which the assaults occurred, led to sus picion against him.

The peculiar assault cases which have terrorized Cambridge and vicinity, as well as other suburban sections, began last June. During the summer there were half a dozen victims of an unknown assailant, each of which was struck down and beaten with a blunt instrument. Early in October Miss Agnes McPhee was assaulted in Somerville and died from her injuries, an Iron wrench was found and fixed up as the weapon used. During the same month eight other cases followed, the last of which conversed last Saturday sicks who Clara other cases followed, the last of which occurred last Saturday night when Clara A. Morton, a laundress at the McLean Asylum, was accosted on the grounds of that institution and beaten with a blunt instrument. Miss Morton ded Sunday.

ARRESTED AT HOME.

Mr. Mason was taken into custody at his mother's home, on Newbury Street. He mother home, on the way Mason admitted to the officers that he was in Somerville on the night on which Mess McPhee was fatally injured The prisoner is about thirty-nine years of age and is a son of the founder of the frim of Meson & Hamiin, organ and plano manufacturers. He was gradu-ated from Harvard in 1886 and entered the firm of which his father was the head. Mental trouble developed with-ing a few years of his graduation and he went to the McLean asylum for treatment. After a time he shows improvement and left the institution.

improvement and left the institution.

A second time it became necessary for him to return, but soon improved and was released a second time. In 1941, however, symptoms more serious than any one of the previous ones developed, and his mother and brother found it unsafe to be with him at their Newbury Street home. He had threatened both and a petition was alled to have him taken away on the ground of insunity, and Mason was sent to Wavery for the third time.

REMAINED SIX MONTHS

The man himself protested against what he termed an injustice and said that he was perfectly sane and would conduct himself as well as nossible while he was there. He remained six months.

a stock-taker at the Mason and Iridian orean factory at Cambridge.

Mason has a mother and three bro-thers, Edward Palmer Mason, Henry Lowell Mason, and Daniel Grecory Ma-son. He is a cousin of John Mason, the athlete of some note.

Mason was detained at the station-house until nearly 3 o'c'ock, when he was taken to Cambridge, where he will remain un-der surveillance by insanity experts for a time.

Throughout the examination he absolutely denied that he knew anything about the assault case. The police assert that four or five witnesses declare positively that they saw Mason in Waverly Satur-

Mason's brother says Alan is in better mental condition than he was some time ago, but he realizes that Alan is an in-some man. One fact considered significant by the police is the admission that it has been the habit of Alan Mason to take a car ride almost every evening before going to led. The ride was taken as usual Surday evening, but Mason declares he did not go in the direction of Wayerly.
